Aaron,

Sorry, just heard your new voicemail today – I was in an all-day meeting and am just now getting around to checking missed calls.

I am not the fiscal person in our office (we're hoping to have that position filled again by Sep 13), but I would say to go ahead and submit whatever you have. If they say it's not sufficient, feel free to let me know and I will follow-up with Scott or others accordingly to figure out what we need to do. I appreciate all your help and I want to make sure you get paid properly for the new modules!

By the way, I'm in an all-day meeting again tomorrow (last one for a while, I hope!). If you ever need to reach me, email is always best.

Thanks!

Aaron,

Sorry, just got back to the office mid-day today (flight delays!) and heard your voicemail.

Once you provided the initial estimate, I handed off the contract negotiation process to Scott, so I'm not sure what was further determined after that point. Are the prices in the initial estimates the final agreed-upon prices?

If so, I would go ahead and start the process by sending the invoices to the usual email (I think it's something like FocusAPinvoices@fairfaxcounty.gov). If they need any further information to pay the invoice, I'm sure they will let you know. Feel free to copy me on that email if you'd like so I can assist with anything further our agency may need to do to service the invoice.
